

Master of Arts in Philosophy

(MA Philosophy - Open Distance Learning)

PROGRAMME PROJECT REPORT (PPR)

Chhatrapati Shahu Ji Maharaj University
Kanpur

(Category-1 and NAAC A++ University)

About the Programme

In common parlance Philosophy is the study of fundamental nature of Reality, Knowledge and Existence. This particular course includes a comprehensive study of Philosophy as a discipline at an advanced level. Precisely, it intends to inculcate a critical and systemic approach and its reliance on reasoned arguments to address general problems concerning matter, existence, knowledge, justice, duty, rule, truth and validity etc. Besides, the course also encompasses the traditional and contemporary aspects of Indian Philosophy, Western Philosophy, Ethics, Kashmir Shaivism and Logic. It aims to fathom new ideas and solution to the problems related to Religion, Society, Environment and Politics.

A Master of Arts (MA) in Philosophy program offered through distance mode provides a flexible and accessible pathway for individuals passionate about delving into the intricacies of philosophical thought. Distance learning has become increasingly popular in higher education, offering students the opportunity to pursue their academic goals while balancing personal and professional commitments. The CSJM University, a category 1 and NAAC A++ accredited university is offering those students a best and easy path to develop their skills. The entire course for the P.G. syllabus in Philosophy will be taught in two years and four Semesters

Relevance of MA Philosophy Programme in Chhatra Pati Shahu Ji Maharaj University Kanpur

The relevance of a Master of Arts (MA) in Philosophy program at Chhatrapati Shahu Ji Maharaj University, Kanpur, lies in its ability to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of philosophical principles, critical thinking skills, and ethical inquiry within the context of a dynamic educational environment. Here are some key points highlighting the relevance of such a program at the university:

1. Critical Thinking Skills: Philosophy teaches rigorous analysis, logical reasoning, and argumentation skills. In an era marked by rapid technological advancements, complex global issues, and misinformation, the ability to think critically and evaluate arguments is invaluable. An MA in Philosophy equips individuals with the tools to navigate ambiguity, challenge assumptions, and arrive at well-reasoned conclusions.
2. Interdisciplinary Perspectives: Philosophy intersects with virtually every field of study, from ethics and politics to science and technology. By exploring philosophical questions, students gain insights into diverse disciplines and develop interdisciplinary perspectives. This breadth of knowledge fosters creativity, innovation, and holistic problem-solving approaches, making philosophy graduates highly adaptable in a rapidly changing world.
3. Ethical Inquiry: Philosophy addresses fundamental questions about morality, justice, and the human condition. In an increasingly interconnected and diverse society, ethical considerations are paramount in decision-making processes across various sectors, including business, healthcare, politics, and technology. An MA in Philosophy cultivates ethical awareness, empathy, and a sense of social responsibility, preparing graduates to navigate ethical dilemmas and contribute positively to their communities.
4. Cultural and Historical Understanding: Philosophy encompasses a rich tapestry of ideas, theories, and intellectual traditions spanning millennia and across cultures. Studying philosophy provides insight into different worldviews, historical contexts, and cultural perspectives, fostering cross-cultural understanding and empathy. In an era of globalization and multiculturalism, this intercultural competence is essential for fostering dialogue, cooperation, and mutual respect in diverse societies.
5. Preparation for Varied Career Paths: Contrary to common misconceptions, philosophy graduates possess highly sought-after skills that are applicable across a wide range of professions. The analytical prowess, communication skills, and intellectual agility honed through philosophical study are valuable assets in fields such as law, education, journalism, policy-making, business, technology, and academia. An MA in Philosophy opens doors to diverse career paths and provides a solid foundation for lifelong learning and professional growth.
6. Personal Fulfilment and Meaningful Engagement: Philosophy addresses existential questions about the nature of existence, knowledge, and the meaning of life. Studying philosophy can be personally enriching, providing individuals with a deeper understanding of themselves, their values, and their place in the world. Through philosophical inquiry, students develop a lifelong appreciation for learning, curiosity, and self-reflection, fostering personal growth, resilience, and a sense of purpose.

The MA Philosophy program at Chhatrapati Shahu Ji Maharaj University, Kanpur, is relevant for its potential to provide students with intellectual enrichment, interdisciplinary perspectives, career preparation, cultural and ethical awareness, promotion of academic excellence, and fulfillment of student demand. By offering such a program, the university can contribute to the advancement of knowledge and the holistic development of its students, preparing them to thrive in an increasingly complex and interconnected world.

Nature of Prospective Target Group of Learners:

The prospective target group of learners for a Master of Arts (MA) in Philosophy program delivered through distance mode is diverse and varied. Here's a breakdown of the nature of this target group:

Working Professionals: Many prospective learners seeking an MA in Philosophy through distance mode are working professionals looking to enhance their knowledge and skills while maintaining their employment. These individuals may include educators, healthcare professionals, lawyers, business professionals, and others who seek to deepen their understanding of philosophical concepts and their applications within their respective fields.

Non-traditional Students: Distance learning programs attract a significant number of non-traditional students, including adults returning to education after a hiatus, individuals balancing family responsibilities, and those with limited access to traditional brick-and-mortar institutions due to geographical constraints or other personal circumstances. These students value the flexibility and accessibility offered by distance education.

Lifelong Learners: Philosophy appeals to individuals with a passion for intellectual inquiry and lifelong learning. Prospective learners in this category may include retirees, hobbyists, and enthusiasts who are interested in exploring philosophical ideas and engaging in intellectual discourse outside of formal academic settings. Distance learning provides these individuals with the opportunity to pursue their interests at their own pace and convenience.

International Students: Distance learning programs are particularly attractive to international students who may face challenges related to visa restrictions, travel expenses, and cultural adaptation when considering traditional on-campus study abroad options. Offering an MA in Philosophy through distance mode allows universities to reach a global audience of prospective learners interested in pursuing graduate education in philosophy from the comfort of their own homes.

Career Advancers: Some prospective learners enroll in distance education programs with the goal of advancing their careers or transitioning into new fields. An MA in Philosophy can provide individuals with transferable skills such as critical thinking, analytical reasoning, and effective communication, which are highly valued in a wide range of professions, including academia, law, public policy, journalism, and business.

Undergraduate Students: Finally, undergraduate students interested in philosophy may also consider pursuing an MA in Philosophy through distance mode as a pathway to further specialization or as preparation for future academic or professional endeavors. Distance learning allows undergraduate students to explore advanced topics in philosophy and gain a deeper understanding of the discipline before committing to a full-time graduate program.

Appropriateness of program to be conducted in Open and Distance Learning mode to acquire specific skills and competence

Conducting a Master of Arts (MA) in Philosophy program through Open and Distance Learning (ODL) mode can be highly appropriate for acquiring specific skills and competencies. Here's how such a program can effectively cater to the needs of learners seeking to develop these skills:

Flexibility: ODL programs offer flexibility in terms of scheduling, allowing learners to balance their studies with work, family, or other commitments. This flexibility enables students to manage their time effectively and tailor their learning experience to suit their individual needs and preferences.

Self-Directed Learning: ODL programs require students to take greater responsibility for their own learning. This fosters self-discipline, time management, and autonomy, which are essential skills for success in any field, including philosophy. Through independent study and self-directed research, learners can develop the ability to set goals, organize their thoughts, and pursue intellectual inquiry effectively.

Digital Literacy: In an ODL environment, students engage with digital technologies and online learning platforms on a regular basis. This exposure helps learners develop digital literacy skills, including proficiency with digital tools, information literacy, and online communication. These skills are increasingly important in today's digital age and are applicable across various professional contexts.

Critical Thinking and Analysis: Philosophy is inherently interdisciplinary and encourages critical thinking, analytical reasoning, and problem-solving skills. ODL programs in philosophy provide ample opportunities for students to engage with philosophical texts, debates, and arguments, honing their ability to analyze complex ideas, evaluate evidence, and construct well-reasoned arguments. These critical thinking skills are transferable and can be applied in a wide range of academic and professional settings.

Effective Communication: ODL programs often incorporate asynchronous communication tools such as discussion forums, email, and chat platforms, as well as synchronous interactions such as virtual lectures and seminars. Engaging in online discussions, presenting ideas in written form, and participating in virtual discussions help students develop effective communication skills, both written and verbal. These skills are crucial for conveying complex ideas clearly and persuasively, whether in academic writing, professional presentations, or interpersonal interactions.

Global Perspective: ODL programs attract a diverse cohort of learners from different geographic regions, cultural backgrounds, and professional contexts. This diversity enriches the learning experience by exposing students to a variety of perspectives, experiences, and worldviews.

Engaging with peers from diverse backgrounds fosters cross-cultural understanding, empathy, and appreciation for diverse perspectives, which are essential for effective communication and collaboration in an interconnected world.

Instructional Design of Open and Distance Learning mode to acquire specific skills and competence:

Designing the instructional framework for an Open and Distance Learning (ODL) mode of a Master of Arts (MA) in Philosophy program to acquire specific skills and competence requires careful consideration of various factors to ensure effectiveness, engagement, and learner success. Here's a structured approach to instructional design for such a program:

A. Curriculum Design

The curriculum for an Open and Distance Learning (ODL) mode of an MA in Philosophy program is structured to facilitate independent study while fostering active engagement with course content. It comprises core courses covering foundational concepts and specialized electives reflecting diverse areas of inquiry. Flexible delivery methods, including online lectures, multimedia resources, and virtual discussions, accommodate varied learning preferences and schedules. Rigorous assessments, such as research papers and exams, ensure academic rigor and mastery of subject matter. Continuous feedback and support from instructors promote student success and progression. The curriculum emphasizes critical thinking, research skills, and practical applications in Logic, analysis and critical thinking.

B. Detailed Syllabus - Annexure-1

B. Duration of the Programme: 02 years; divided into 04 semesters.

C. Faculty and Support Staff requirement:

Academic Staff

1-Programme Coordinator, 1- Course Coordinator, 1-Course Mentor per batch of 50 students

D. Instructional Delivery mechanisms & Identification of Media

The teaching methodology of this subject will be different from other traditional methodologies. Courses (regular/physical) are held at the university. A student-centered and student-friendly approach is required in distance courses. This is also important because learning and teaching are delivered through print media rather than face-to-face communication.

VI. Self-learning materials (SLM) should be developed in print media.

- Self-Learning Material (SLM) will be self-explanatory, self-sufficient, self-directed, self-motivated and self-assessable.
- The SLM will contain a complete course description including an overview of the modules, as well as objectives, activities, tasks and additional resources.
- There must be a description of the approved value for each unit or unit of the course.
- There should be clear guidelines regarding academic integrity and netiquette expectations regarding activities, discussions, and plagiarism.
- The level and style of presentation and language should be simple and appropriate to facilitate e-learning.
- The content must be interactive with the appropriate use of graphics, animation simulations, etc. to keep students interested.
