

3. Access to mental health support for both staff and students

The School of Health Sciences prioritizes mental health by offering a range of support services for both; staff and students. These include counselling, psychiatric care, peer support programs, educational resources and culturally sensitive initiatives. By providing these resources, the institute aims to promote well-being, reduce stigma, and create a supportive environment that facilitates academic and personal success for all individuals involved.

