On March 20, 2020, a webinar on "Fact-Checking of Information on the Internet" was conducted by Mr. Nimish Kumar, Science Films & Publications Divisions, Vigyan Prasara for the Faculty and students of Institute of Journalism and Mass Communication.

The purpose of the webinar was to provide insights and techniques to distinguish between factual and false information on the internet. This report summarizes the key points discussed during the webinar.

The speaker of the webinar started by defining what fact-checking means and the importance of fact-checking. After which he highlighted several techniques to distinguish between factual and false information.

The speaker also discussed the importance of fact-checking tools, including websites such as Snopes, PolitiFact, and FactCheck.org, which can help in verifying the accuracy of information while addressing the issue of bias in information.

The speaker also emphasized the importance of media literacy. Media literacy refers to the ability to access, analyze, evaluate, and create media in various forms. Media literacy helps in developing critical thinking skills and enables individuals to identify misinformation and disinformation.

The webinar titled "Challenges in Journalism During Pandemic" was conducted by Dr. Govind Kumar of Jammu University on 30 April, 2020 for the faculty and students of the Institute of Journalism and mass communication to shed light on the difficulties faced by journalists in reporting during the pandemic.

The key speaker of the webinar discussed the ethical dilemmas faced by reporters, such as balancing the public's right to know with patient confidentiality, and the need to verify information amidst the proliferation of fake news propagating on the Internet and traditional news media.

Dr. Kumar also highlighted the increased risk faced by journalists in the field, particularly in regions with limited access to personal protective equipment. He also emphasized the importance of prioritizing mental health and self-care, given the high stress and anxiety levels associated with covering the pandemic.

Overall, the webinar provided valuable insights into the challenges faced by journalists during the ongoing global crisis.
